Kim and Brent
SHIVERS

Kimberly Melissa Darabaris and Jeremy Brent Shivers tied the knot on October 14, 2007 at the beautiful Renaissance Ross Bridge Resort in Hoover, AL.

The couple first met in the sixth grade, though no real sparks flew until they were reunited through mutual friends a little over a year ago. Though many may recognize Brent as being the drummer for the well - known college circuit band, Fly by Radio, Kim made it clear to Brent that she was much more than a groupie. Both Kim and Brent agree that it took them very little time to decide that they both wanted to spend their lives together. Once Brent popped the magic question, Kim responded with a definite "yes" and the whole thing came together pretty quickly.

The wedding, attended by numerous friends and family members, of Kim and Brent, was held outdoor on Renaissance's large terrace. Where the short traditional ceremony was concluded by the release of doves into the evening sky.

The bride wore a designer gown by Allure Couture. The beautiful beaded A-line dress featured a long train and was accented by a hand made white veil with a ribbon edge. She carried white roses mixed with small pink flowers throughout. The bridesmaids carried pink and red roses and each wore a deep red strapless dress with matching broach and earrings. The grooms were decked in black tuxedos with red paisley vests.

The wedding decor consisted of red and pink flowers along with an isle covered in rose petals leading right up to the flower covered arch. The floral, provided by Mainstreet Florist of Mt. Laurel, AL, included vases of matching flowers on each reception table.

The reception was also held on the terrace and featured a variety of wonderful food, drink and music along with the couple's custom cakes designed by Diane Olexa at Olexa's of Mountain Brook, AL. The wedding and all of the festivities were caught on film by the renowned talents of Arden Photography, capturing lots of memories to cherish for years to come.

Friends and family enjoyed the excitement and dancing well into the night then watched as the newlyweds made a run through the barrage of rose petals being hurled at them as they made way to their getaway car, an antique, red Camaro convertible.

Kim and Brent honeymooned - like rock stars - in St. Thomas before heading back home to Pelham, AL where they are enjoying life as newlyweds.

Both Kim and Brent agree that it took them very little time to decide that they both wanted to spend their lives together.
